Thomas More Chambers is a leading common law set, now inviting applications for third six pupillage.

Chambers has "an excellent array of barristers" and "an enviable international practice". The clerks are "first rate"; "they go above and beyond to assist counsel, the instructing solicitors and ultimately, the client" (Legal 500).

The set boasts over 50 tenants and door tenants, who practise in a wide range of areas, including crime, personal injury, family, employment, commercial and property law. Diversity is one of our strengths; whilst some established members have exclusively criminal, family or civil practices, many choose to work in a variety of different fields. This is a particular advantage as the Bar adjusts to the pressures caused by the COVID-19 pandemic. Chambers has been widely recognised as market-leading in its innovative response to the crisis, which includes the launch of the COVID-19 Hub, the Association of Pandemic Lawyers (PanLaw.org), a criminal webinar series and a renewed focus on ADR as the courts struggle to deal with the case backlog.

Applicants can rest assured that third-six pupils remain busy with hearings and exciting new projects, engaged in chambers life and both financially and emotionally supported through this crisis. New third-six pupils can expect to attend telephone and video hearings on most days of the week and will have the option of attending court in person on an increasingly regular basis. Chambers policy is to support any barrister who is unable to attend court for health or family reasons and pupils are no exception to this.

*At this time, applications are invited from third six pupils who wish to develop a mixed practice with a particular focus on crime.

Chambers has a strong record of recruiting from our pupils. All pupils are guaranteed to be considered for tenancy during the course of their pupillage.

For further details, please see our website (<http://www.thomasmore.co.uk>) or contact Genevieve Moss at gmoos@thomasmore.co.uk.

Applications should be made by email to Genevieve, enclosing a CV and covering letter. We hope to interview successful candidates shortly.

Chambers is committed to maintaining our diverse membership through a fair recruitment process which prevents direct and indirect discrimination.
